

I'm having five frogs for dinner tonight.
I think that five frogs is just about right.
Six is too many, and four is too small
There's room at the table for five, and that's all.

Five Frogs for Dinner

by Melissa Maes

We're having spaghetti and corn dogs and fries and lettuce and carrots and tiny green flies,
ice cream and inchworms,
a pretty pink cake.
There's only one rule
You must eat what you take!

We'll all use our napkins
to keep our hands neat
And lick our lips often,
it'll taste mighty sweet.
I'm having five frogs
for dinner tonight.
Can you come too?
It's just a quick bite.
